Dies Calls Hoosier in Anti-Semitic Probe

BANKER, G. O. P. OFFICIAL, TAKES WITNESS STAND

Felix McWhirter To Be Asked Of Correspondence With Kentucky Captain

HAMILTON TELLS HIS SIDE

Republican Chairman Denies Providing Names For Campaign Use

WASHINGTON, May 23 — Felix McWhirter, Indianapolis bank president and treasurer of the Indiana Republican state committee, today flatly denied that he was participating in anti-Semitic activities, adding that he believed "the hymn of hate has been sung in too many places in this country."

WASHINGTON, May 23—The Dies committee today called Felix McWhirter, Indianapolis banker and treasurer of the Indiana Republican state committee, to testify on correspondence he had with James Erwin Campbell, Kentucky army reserve captain, accused of disseminating anti-Semitic propaganda.

Campbell testified that McWhirter wrote him a year ago seeking to learn if there was Jewish blood in the veins of Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, William Allen White, noted Kansas editor, and Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the secretary of state. Campbell also said that McWhirter was on a select mailing list of 40 prominent people over the nation to whom he mailed "confidential" reports purporting to show that a group of members in New York City's exclusive Harmonie Club were plotting to seize control of the government.

Hamilton Denies Purpose
Republican National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton took the stand late yesterday to deny that he gave Campbell the names of Republican national committee members for the purpose of aiding an anti-Semitic campaign.

Hamilton explained that such requests are a common occurrence, that the list of names is published in the World Almanac and that there was "nothing secret" about it. He recalled that last year he broke a political precedent for national chairman by publicly asking for the defeat of a G. O. P. candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator in Kansas.

The candidate was the Rev. Gerald Winrod, who, Hamilton said had identified himself "on the side of intolerance" by making anti-racial and anti-Catholic utterances.

U. S. to Mediate Labor Strife in Detroit Area

DETROIT, May 23—Mediation of the day-old C. I. O. strike of 18,000 Briggs Manufacturing Co. employees was to be attempted today after it was reported Department of Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey was enroute to Detroit.

Dewey, it was said, will attempt to break the deadlock between company officials and unionists at a conference.

Meanwhile, the company announced, there would be no effort to operate the seven struck plants. A Briggs spokesman said the strike was unwarranted since there were no concrete grievances.

Nine thousand workers at the Plymouth plant will remain idle since the Briggs Co. supplies it with bodies.

Production stoppages were threatened at the Ford Motor Co. Lincoln Zephyr and Mercury plants and also at the Chrysler Corporation due to body shortages. Stoppages at these plants would increase the unemployed to nearly 50,000 persons.

Police were present this morning as pickets began to form in front of the Briggs plant.

Word Dewey was coming to Detroit was given out by R. J. Thomas, C. I. O.-Allied United Automobile Workers union president.

Emil Mazey, president of the Briggs U. A. W. local, termed the strike 100 percent effective, said the union would obtain food and financial aid for the strikers should the shutdown become prolonged.

Any effort to prevent strikers from obtaining unemployment insurance benefits would be met by court action, he said.

A company statement issued yesterday placed full blame for the strike on Mazey, charging he refused to submit the pending points of dispute to arbitration.

REPUBLIC STEEL ASKS MILLIONS STRIKE DAMAGES

Corporation Sues John Lewis, C. I. O. And Its Principal Affiliates

CLAYTON ACT FOLLOWED

Gigantic Conspiracy Cited In Petition On File In Federal Court

CLEVELAND, May 23 — Declaring it was subjected to a deliberately planned reign of terror in the "little steel" strike of 1937, the Republic Steel Corporation, one of the nation's largest independent producers, today filed suit for triple damages of $7,500,000 against the Congress of Industrial Organizations and its principal affiliates and officers headed by John L. Lewis.

The suit, filed in federal court under provisions of the Sherman and Clayton acts alleged that strike violence in the steel centers of Ohio, in South Chicago, Ill., Buffalo, N. Y., Beaver Falls, Pa., Cumberland, Md., and elsewhere grew out of a C. I. O. conspiracy to force Republic Steel to sign a collective bargaining contract.

The damages sought were thrice the $2,500,000 the corporation claimed was lost through the forced closing of its plants, abnormal costs entailed in operating them under strike siege, expenditures for protection and the attendant decline in business and inability to contract for future deliveries. Under the Clayton act, triple damages can be claimed.

Board Order Argued

Currently, Republic Steel is appealing a National Labor Relations board order to reinstate 5,000 employees involved in the strike. The corporation also is defendant in damage suits totaling $800,000 growing out of the Memorial Day riot in South Chicago in which 10 persons were killed or fatally hurt.

Defendants in the suit filed today included the Steel Workers Organizing committee, a C. I. O. affiliate; all principal officers and subordinates of the C. I. O. and the S.W.O.C. and their union locals throughout the strike area as well as 700 individual strikers.

Riots were provoked by organized mobs, the bill of complaint alleged, and the railroads were blocked by dynamiting, severed rails, chains and ties, and intimidation of train crews.

Wives and families of men seeking to work were intimidated, their homes were attacked and airplanes attempting to drop supplies into the besieged plants were fired on, it was asserted.

MURDER CHARGE FILED AGAINST FAIRFIELD MAN

LANCASTER, May 23 — Although he still protests he is innocent, a first degree murder charge was filed today against Frederick Moore, 52, charging him with slaying his wife.

Sheriff William J. Belhorn filed the murder charge. Mrs. Moore's body, two bullet wounds in the head, was found in a clothes closet in her residence last Thursday.

Moore, arrested Saturday in Massillon, at first told authorities he had not been home since last Monday, but Sheriff Belhorn said he later admitted having been there as late as last Wednesday.

The bullets which killed Mrs. Moore, together with a revolver and a stained shirt found in her husband's car when a motorcycle patrolman arrested him in Massillon, have been sent to F. B. I. headquarters in Washington for analysis.

Prosecutor Robert Hastings wants to know whether the fatal bullets were fired from the gun in Moore's possession and whether stains on the soiled shirt were bloodstains.

Moore could have been held no later than tonight had not the formal charge been filed. Previously he merely had been detained for investigation.

AIRPLANES JOIN IN SEARCH FOR IDAHO FUGITIVE

BOISE, Ida., May 23 — Armed with machine guns, rifles and side-arms, a posse of more than 100 deputies and engineers of the Idaho National Guard today spread fan-like through the timberland of central Idaho to take dead or alive the last of four escaped convicts still at liberty.

Three of the four desperate felons, who scaled the wall of the Idaho state penitentiary Saturday, were trapped last night in a log cabin. The trio—Edgar Pruett, 20, Raymond Curtis, 24, and Cliff Daugherty, 35—although heavily armed, surrendered without resistance when more than 100 officers and civilians closed in on them near Garden Valley, 50 miles from Boise.

The fourth convict, Lonnie Walling, 31, was believed stationed on a hill-top lookout at the time his three companions were captured.

The quartet terrorized the Payette river district, committing a series of armed robberies among farmers and ranchers.

Orders to take Walling dead or alive were issued by Prison Warden P. C. Meredith. While the scattered possemen kept contact with each other by radio, chartered airplanes flew over the rugged mountain area in an effort to spot the lone felon.

Isle Of Shoals Scene Of Mishap; Telephone On Buoy Used

PORTSMOUTH, New Hampshire, May 23 — Sixty-two men were trapped this afternoon in the U. S. submarine Squalus off the Isle of Shoals in 243 feet of water.

The men were in communication with members of the crew of the U. S. submarine Sculpin by means of a telephone to a buoy. The trapped men included six officers, 51 members of the submarine crew, four Portsmouth navy yard workers and one civilian.

The Squalus left the navy yard on a test this morning for routine operations. She reached a point off the Isle of Shoals which is about 12 miles east of the mainland when she submerged at 7:30 a. m., (Circleville time).

This afternoon when the submersible failed to return and was unreported, the submarine Sculpin was sent out to investigate.

Officers of the Sculpin found the buoy with the telephone wires attached and immediately communicated with the submerged craft.

According to word sent shoreward, a valve near the crew room had failed to work, causing the submarine to be unable to rise.

NEW RELIEF ACT AND FARM BILL FACING ATTACK

Three Billions Involved In Two F. D. R.-Supported Federal Statutes

BYRD LEADS IN SENATE

Virginian Says Prosperity Cannot Be Purchased On Borrowed Money

WASHINGTON, May 23 — Leaders of the house economy bloc, more determined than hopeful, today launched their last battle of the session to check the steady march of congress toward record-breaking appropriations and authorizations.

Two bills involving $3,000,000,000—a new relief bill and the annual agricultural supply bill—were chosen by the bloc leaders on which to press for a final showdown on the attitude of congress toward budget-balancing demands.

The senate economy bloc, meantime, lined up to oppose any increased federal spending for pump-priming purposes after President Roosevelt stated last night that federal spending will continue so long as necessary to improve living and business conditions.

W.P.A. Administrator F. C. Harrington was to touch off the battle over the relief appropriation for the fiscal year starting July 1 by appearing before a house subcommittee in behalf of the President's $1,700,000,000 relief program.

Farm Bill in Conference The house was also to be called on to send the record-breaking $1,200,000,000 agricultural supply bill to conference with the senate for final action on appropriations not contained in the presidential budget.

The President's relief request included $1,477,000,000 for W.P.A. and added sums for the National Youth Administration and other relief organizations. While his program calls for an average of 2,000,000 W.P.A. workers, as against 3,000,000 this year, economy-minded members demanded a complete revision of W.P.A. and an even greater reduction in federal relief outlays.

The Woodrum proposal to limit relief to $1,200,000,000 next year, putting a greater burden on local governments and diverting some relief funds to public works projects, was to be considered by the house subcommittee. It suspended its investigation of W.P.A. in order to start action on the relief bill.

Rep. Cannon (D) Missouri, planned to move to send the agricultural bill to conference without giving the economy bloc a chance to force a vote on its $225,000,000 for parity payments and $113,000,000 for purchase of surplus farm products. Rep. Woodrum (D) Virginia, wants the bill sent back to the appropriations committee.

Senator Byrd (D) Virginia, sounded the battle cry for the senate economy bloc, while Senator Pepper (D) Florida, urged additional spending.

Byrd Opposed, Too "It is futile, I think, to talk about a new spending program when we are now spending the largest sum in our history," said Byrd. "We have not been able to purchase prosperity on borrowed money, and the continued effort to do this will inevitably lead to disastrous results."

Pepper, however, declared, "a certain quantity of spending is necessary before prosperity can come." He said if there is a deficiency between industry's contribution to "prosperity," and standards set by the government, "the government must make it up." Pepper said he may sponsor the proposed Works Appropriation program members of the spending bloc have under consideration.

BANKER, G. O. P. OFFICIAL TAKES WITNESS STAND

Felix McWhirter To Be Asked Of Correspondence With Kentucky Captain

True, who puts out industrial control reports, put out one four pages long accusing me of being pro-Jewish and demanding my removal from the chairmanship," Hamilton said. "I have been accused of being pro and anti everything since I became chairman. This is nothing new."

Testimony before the committee last year linked True, who operates out of a Washington, D. C. office, with anti-Semitic activities.

May Be Introduced

Hamilton said that it was "entirely possible" that he had been introduced to Campbell by McWhirter at the Republican "cornfield rally" at Washington, Ind., last year. But, he said, he didn't remember it.

"But in one of your letters," Chairman Dies (D) of Texas interrupted, "you said that you would welcome another chat with him."

"Well," replied Hamilton amid laughter, "when anyone writes into our headquarters and says he has met me I never deny it."

WOODARD OPENS FIGHT TO KEEP HIS WARDEN JOB

COLUMBUS, May 23 — Attempts were made today to establish that stories of liquor smuggling, use of dope and gambling were "fantastic tales of stir-crazy prisoners" as the defense opened its case in the civil service commission hearing of ouster charges against Warden James C. Woodard of Ohio penitentiary.

Under questioning by Fred Rector, chief counsel for Woodard, John H. Dicken, a guard captain, testified he never saw a marijuana cigarette and that only on "two occasions" did he find liquor on prisoners.

"The only way to prevent gambling would be to put a guard in every cell," Dicken declared, "and each guard would have to be honest. The prisoners gamble their pie, doughnuts and other articles, but I have never seen kittys of $10 a day."

This was in answer to Rector's questions whether the banker in gambling games had taken from $8 to $10 a day from pots as his share, as was brought out in the state's case.

Dicken answered "no" to the question whether one prisoner kept from $300 to $600 to run poker games with.

'BOSS' GETTING READY TO TAKE JOURNEY TO PEN

KANSAS CITY, May 23 — Tom J. Pendergast, head of the political machine which for 13 years ruled Kansas City and was a powerful influence throughout the state, began to put his house in order today before entering Leavenworth penitentiary to serve a federal term of one year and three months.

The political chieftain was given the jail sentence yesterday on his plea of guilty to charges he evaded payment of $265,000 in income taxes in 1935 and 1936.

Judge Merrill E. Otis also sentenced Pendergast to three years in prison and a fine of $10,000 on a second indictment, but suspended the sentence and placed the defendant under probation for five years.

The federal jurist then gave Pendergast one week to arrange his affairs before going to prison. With time off for good behavior, the Kansas City "boss" could be freed within a year.

In addition to the prison sentences, Pendergast must pay the government between $525,000 and $550,000 as the evaded taxes, penalties and interest before he clears himself.

that he and Mrs. Dionne were happy to be home again in their familiar surroundings.

Doctor Dafoe was at once proud, happy—and relieved—over his charges' conduct in the presence of their Britannic majesties.

"There was no majesty stuff when these girls threw their arms around the Queen and kissed her," smiled the country doctor.

"The children were remarkable. They did their little curtsy and each gave the Queen an autographed picture. They chattered like magpies!"

All the quint thought the Queen "la belle Reine," he said while Marie "fell in love with the King, playing with the gold braid of his uniform and asking all about the medals."

King George answered each of Marie's questions, he said, "and seemed to enjoy himself immensely."

Pomp, Ceremony Forgotten "I think for a few minutes," Doctor Dafoe added, "that the King and Queen forgot all pomp and ceremony and were just loving parents."

BRITAIN'S ENVOY CLAIMS GERMANY SMUGGLING GUNS

LONDON, May 23 — German gun-running into the Danzig area from East Prussia was the underlying cause of disorders at Kalthof and other customs posts, according to reports reaching London today.

Polish objections to the smuggling of weapons into Danzig for possible use against Polish citizens was said to have resulted in resistance by the customs officials.

A report from British Ambassador Sir Howard Kennard in Warsaw attributed demonstrations which resulted in the slaying of Gustav Gruebner, German butcher, to arms smuggling attempts, it was understood.

Jurors were taken to the scene of the wreck Monday afternoon. Statements of counsel were made on their return and they were dismissed for the day.

Ray Davis, a member of counsel for the plaintiff, said testimony would show the truck driver "cut the curve" causing the accident, that the tractor-trailer outfit was being operated at an excessive speed and the headlights showed a beam more than three and a half feet above the ground at 75 feet.

Charles Gerhardt, a member of counsel for the trucking firm, said evidence for the defendant would show the car was being operated at an excessive speed, and crossed to the west side of the road and struck the tractor-trailer outfit near the fifth wheel, causing it to jackknife. He further said evidence would show the occupants of the car were intoxicated.

BANKER, G. O. P. OFFICIAL TAKES WITNESS STAND

True, who puts out industrial control reports, put out one four pages long accusing me of being pro-Jewish and demanding my removal from the chairmanship," Hamilton said. "I have been accused of being pro and anti everything since I became chairman. This is nothing new."

Testimony before the committee last year linked True, who operates out of a Washington, D. C. office, with anti-Semitic activities.

May Be Introduced

Hamilton said that it was "entirely possible" that he had been introduced to Campbell by McWhirter at the Republican "cornfield rally" at Washington, Ind., last year. But, he said, he didn't remember it.

"But in one of your letters," Chairman Dies (D) of Texas interrupted, "you said that you would welcome another chat with him."

"Well," replied Hamilton amid laughter, "when anyone writes into our headquarters and says he has met me I never deny it."

WOODARD OPENS FIGHT TO KEEP HIS WARDEN JOB

COLUMBUS, May 23 — Attempts were made today to establish that stories of liquor smuggling, use of dope and gambling were "fantastic tales of stir-crazy prisoners" as the defense opened its case in the civil service commission hearing of ouster charges against Warden James C. Woodard of Ohio penitentiary.

Under questioning by Fred Rector, chief counsel for Woodard, John H. Dicken, a guard captain, testified he never saw a marijuana cigarette and that only on "two occasions" did he find liquor on prisoners.

"The only way to prevent gambling would be to put a guard in every cell," Dicken declared, "and each guard would have to be honest. The prisoners gamble their pie, doughnuts and other articles, but I have never seen kettles of $10 a day."

This was in answer to Rector's questions whether the banker in gambling games had taken from $5 to $10 a day from pots as his share, as was brought out in the state's case.

Dicken answered "no" to the question whether one prisoner kept from $300 to $600 to run poker games with.

'BOSS' GETTING READY TO TAKE JOURNEY TO PEN

KANSAS CITY, May 23 — Tom J. Pendergast, head of the political machine which for 13 years ruled Kansas City and was a powerful influence throughout the state, began to put his house in order today before entering Leavenworth penitentiary to serve a federal term of one year and three months.

The political chieftain was given the jail sentence yesterday on his plea of guilty to charges he evaded payment of $265,000 in income taxes in 1935 and 1936. Judge Merrill E. Otis also sentenced Pendergast to three years in prison and a fine of $10,000 on a second indictment, but suspended the sentence and placed the defendant under probation for five years.

The federal jurist then gave Pendergast one week to arrange his affairs before going to prison. With time off for good behavior, the Kansas City "boss" could be freed within a year.

In addition to the prison sentences, Pendergast must pay the government between $525,000 and $550,000 as the evaded taxes, penalties and interest before he clears himself.

'QUINTS' RETURN TO CALLANDER

that he and Mrs. Dionne were happy to be home again in their familiar surroundings.

Doctor Dafeo was at once proud, happy—and relieved—over his charges' conduct in the presence of their British majesties.

"There was no majesty stuff when these girls threw their arms around the Queen and kissed her," smiled the country doctor.

"The children were remarkable. They did their little curtsy and each gave the Queen an autographed picture. They chattered like magpies!"

All the quints thought the Queen "la belle Reine," he said while Marie "fell in love with the King, playing with the gold braid of his uniform and asking all about the medals."

King George answered each of Marie's questions, he said, "and seemed to enjoy himself immensely."

Pomp, Ceremony Forgotten
"I think for a few minutes," Doctor Dafeo added, "that the King and Queen forgot all pomp and ceremony and were just loving parents."

"She told me," said Nurse Molly, "they were the loveliest children she had ever seen."

BRITAIN'S ENVOY CLAIMS GERMANY SMUGGLING GUNS

LONDON, May 23 — German gun-running into the Danzig area from East Prussia was the underlying cause of disorders at Kalthof and other customs ports, according to reports reaching London today.

Polish objections to the smuggling of weapons into Danzig for possible use against Polish citizens was said to have resulted in resistance by the customs officials. A report from British Ambassador Sir Howard Kennard in Warsaw attributed demonstrations which resulted in the slaying of Gustav Gruebner, German butcher, to arms smuggling attempts, it was understood.

Jackson township, and Ray Ridge-way, Darby township. Jurors were taken to the scene of the wreck Monday afternoon. Statements of counsel were made on their return and they were dismissed for the day.

Ray Davis, a member of counsel for the plaintiff, said testimony would show the truck driver "cut the curve" causing the accident, that the tractor-trailer outfit was being operated at an excessive speed and the headlights showed a beam more than three and a half feet above the ground at 75 feet. Charles Gerhardt, a member of counsel for the trucking firm, said evidence for the defendant would show the car was being operated at an excessive speed, and crossed to the west side of the road and struck the tractor-trailer outfit near the fifth wheel, causing it to jackknife. He further said evidence would show the occupants of the car were intoxicated.

TWO NAMED ROBBERS OF DELAWARE 'GAS' STATION

DELAWARE, May 23—Chester James, 36, formerly of Marion, and Paul Wade, 19, Marion, were held in county jail today charged with the armed robbery of a Delaware filling station.

The pair was captured at Sunbury by highway patrolmen and deputy sheriffs after an 8-county alarm was sounded. The bandits obtained $51 in the holdup.

Sheriff M. F. Pinney revealed that James, who said he escaped from a Georgia chain gang last April, answered the description of a bandit who pulled several bank robberies in northern Ohio recently. The men were to be arraigned later today.

SENATORS MOVE TO ELIMINATE PAY CUT ORDER

State Employees May Not Be Forced To Take Slash; Money Bill Studied

ADJOURNMENT DATE FIXED

Much Other Business Given Attention During Day's Legislative Session

COLUMBUS, May 23 — With sine die adjournment tentatively set for May 31 or June 1, the legislature buckled down today and promised speedy action on the appropriations bill, relief legislation and other measures which must clear before the session ends.

Following last night's senate session, Senate Majority Floor Leader Frank Whittemore (R-Akron) told newsmen that house and senate leaders had agreed on adjournment for either Wednesday or Thursday of next week, depending on the rapidity with which "must" measures complete passage.

A resolution calling for adjournment on May 31 will probably be introduced in the house today or tomorrow, it was learned, but Whittemore said he would rather have the sessions go over into June rather than stage an "all-night, cover-the-clock session."

Appropriation Considered

Meanwhile, the senate finance committee, working day and night, juggled figures in the biennium appropriations bill which has already been passed by the house.

Tentatively, the committee agreed to restore a three percent horizontal cut in salary appropriations for various state institutions. This would put back in the bill about $550,000 for each of the two years — 1939 and 1940. Final action on this matter will probably be taken today.

In order to meet present needs, the committee restored $655,000 of the $2,096,000 lopped off by the house in the public employees retirement fund.

The three percent salary appropriations cut was ordered by the house finance committee in order to meet biennium relief needs but the senate committee decided that the cut might be restored and relief taken care of by the house cut in the retirement fund.

Meeting in skeleton session, the house last night received the highly important relief administration bill as recommended for passage by the public welfare committee. It will be placed on the house calendar for early action.

Important phases of the relief administration bill include administering of relief by the state welfare director, a board of appeals in relief matters, a county relief director appointed by county commissioners and barring from relief rolls of aliens who have not taken out citizenship papers.

May Borrow Tag Fund

The senate last night concurred in house amendments to Am. Sub. S. B. 4 which permits counties to borrow auto tag revenues for poor relief. A vital measure in the relief program, the bill now goes to Governor Bricker for signature.

In a regular working session, the senate passed five bills and received two others.

After more than an hour of debate, the upper house passed Sub. S. B. 74, introduced by Sen. Dave Baumhart (R-Vermillion) which makes certain changes in the liquor department setup.

The bill exempts from taxation spirituous liquor stored in bonded warehouses for the liquor department and limits the director's power to regulations covering liquor stores.

It also provides that wholesale and retail permits be renewed only if permit holders have by Jan. 1, 1941, paid all accounts for beer and malt beverages as of Aug. 23, 1937.

Sen. Maurice Lipscher (D-Youngstown) introduced an amendment, which passed, granting right of appeal to Common Pleas court from revocation decisions of the state liquor board.

Unanimously, the senate approved a bill forbidding wearing

Virginia Judge

Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia are not saying anything about it, but Roosevelt put over such a fast one on the appointment of a new Virginia judge that they are still gasping.

Last Winter, it will be recalled, Glass and Byrd fought Roosevelt to a standstill regarding the appointment of Floyd H. Roberts as U. S. District Judge in southwest Virginia, on the ground that the President had not consulted them about it.

They had nothing against Roberts' qualifications, but complained that Roosevelt, instead of discussing the matter with them, had discussed it with their enemy, Governor Jim Price. In a Senate showdown, Glass and Byrd won.

So last week, Roosevelt quietly selected Armistead M. Doble, dean of the Virginia Law School, as the new U. S. judge for Virginia. Doble, Roosevelt knew, had a record so outstanding that neither Byrd nor Glass could oppose him.

But Roosevelt was careful to say nothing about the appointment to anyone except Attorney General Murphy. Particularly he did not tell the two Virginia Senators, let alone consult them.

It was not until Doble's name actually was on the way to the Senate that the White House sent word to Glass and Byrd that the Virginia Law dean was being appointed. There was nothing left for the two Senators to do but rush out statements that they approved the selection.

Policemen in larger cities came in for relief when the upper chamber approved Sen. William Zou's measure establishing an eight hour working day for policemen in municipalities. The vote was unanimous.

Other bills approved by the senate would:

1. Authorize taxing authorities to go outside ten-mill tax limitations for services on debts incurred prior to 1931.

2. Authorize Lucas county auditor to make refunds to certain taxpayers in connection with construction of Drenan ditch improvement.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," one of literature's most shocking, spine-chilling mystery stories and the greatest of all Sherlock Holmes' astounding adventures, has at last been transcribed to the screen.

Tall, spare, hawklike Basil Rathbone, in the perfect-fitting role of the great detective, is co-featured with Richard Greene and Wendy Barrie in the 20th Century-Fox production which will be presented at the Grand theatre today, Wednesday and Thursday.

In this great story the master of a thousand mysteries pits his cunning against the giant unearthly beast that roams the fog-shrouded English moor with blazing eyes and bared fangs, terrorizing the countryside, striking horror into the hearts of two young lovers and leaving a trail so terrifying that only Sherlock Holmes dare follow.

Nigel Bruce plays the famous Dr. Watson, the great detective's constant companion, Boswell and amazed observer. Also included in the cast are Lionel Atwill, John Carradine, Barlowe Borland, Beryl Mercer, Morton Lowry and Ralph Forbes.

HELENE COSTELLO CITED

HOLLYWOOD, May 23 — Helene Costello, former film actress, was free on $10 bail today after being charged with driving when under the influence of liquor. Miss Costello denied the charge and was ordered to appear Friday for trial.

Aubrey Williams, director of National Youth Administration, is being considered to head the Federal Security Agency; and John Carmody, Rural Electrification boss, as chief of the Federal Works Agency. . . SENATORS FIND TWO NEW BILLS UP FOR ACTION

COLUMBUS, May 23 — With adjournment a matter of little more than a week, the senate today was confronted with two new bills.

During last night's session, Sen. Fred Adams (R-Bowling Green) introduced a measure placing the state's contribution to public employees' retirement fund on a pay as you go basis.

Adams is chairman of the senate finance committee which yesterday restored, in order to meet present needs, $655,000 of the $2,096,000 cut off by the house in the retirement fund provision in the biennium appropriations bill.

Another bill, introduced by Sen. Oliver Nelson (R-Milledgeville) would authorize boards of park commissioners to issue notes and bonds for acquisitions and improvement of sites, with obligations retired through rentals, licenses and permit fees.

PASSPORT DISH

NEW YORK, — No Dane ever worries about losing his passport, for if he does there is one sure way of proving he's a Dane. According to a guard at the Danish Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, all any citizen of Denmark has to do is report to the nearest Danish consulate or legation and pronounce the name of a famous native dessert — Rodgrød med Flode.

It is huckleberry pudding with thick Devonshire cream, served in the outline of a map of Denmark. According to experts, no one but a true Dane can even demote attempt pronunciation of the dish.

KIWANIANS AND GUESTS LISTEN TO FARM TALK

Fifteen Pickaway county farmers were guests of Kiwanians, Monday night, to hear the address of Dr. Harry Barnard, of Columbus, executive secretary of the National Farm and Chemurgic Council.

Dr. Barnard presented an interesting and educational address on the various industrial uses for surplus farm crops. He exhibited cloth made from milk and cited the great advancement made in the industrial uses of soybeans and other farm products.

Dan McClain, general chairman in charge of the first annual Policeman's and Fireman's Ball, has not completed his report on the event. Failure of some ticket sellers to make reports has delayed a final report.

The meeting was held in Hanley's tearoom.

GARNER, FAMILY ROUTED BY FIRE IN THEIR HOTEL

WASHINGTON, May 23 — Vice President John N. Garner, who usually retires around 9 p. m., was up and very much awake a few minutes after last midnight. Smoke, caused by a short circuit, routed the Garner family from their seventh floor apartment at the Washington hotel.

Sleepy-eyed, the vice president, wearing blue-striped pajamas, escorted his wife, who wore a blue kimono, and Mr. and Mrs. Tully Garner, his son and daughter-in-law, past a group of guests to an unoccupied apartment in another wing of the hotel.

"I have never known Mr. Garner

to be frightened at anything," Mrs. Garner told a reporter who had asked "if the vice president was scared."

"It's the most unpleasant way he's ever been up at this hour," she added.

Scientists say that no left-handed child should be made to change to right-handedness.

SENATORS MOVE TO ELIMINATE PAY CUT ORDER

State Employees May Not Be Forced To Take Slash; Money Bill Studied

ADJOURNMENT DATE FIXED

Much Other Business Given Attention During Day's Legislative Session

COLUMBUS, May 23 — With sine die adjournment tentatively set for May 31 or June 1, the legislature buckled today and promised speedy action on the appropriations bill, relief legislation and other measures which must clear before the session ends.

Following last night's senate session, Senate Majority Floor Leader Frank Whittemore (R-Akron) told newsmen that house and senate leaders had agreed on adjournment for either Wednesday or Thursday of next week, depending on the rapidity with which "must" measures complete passage.

A resolution calling for adjournment on May 31 will probably be introduced in the house today or tomorrow, it was learned, but Whittemore said he would rather have the sessions go over into June rather than stage an "all-night, cover-the-clock session."

Appropriation Considered

Meanwhile, the senate finance committee, working day and night, juggled figures in the biennial appropriations bill which has already been passed by the house.

Tentatively, the committee agreed to restore a three percent horizontal cut in salary appropriations for various state institutions. This would put back in the bill about $550,000 for each of the two years — 1939 and 1940. Final action on this matter will probably be taken today.

In order to meet present needs, the committee restored $655,000 of the $2,096,000 lopped off by the house in the public employees retirement fund.

The three percent salary appropriations cut was ordered by the house finance committee in order to meet biennial relief needs but the senate committee decided that the cut might be restored and relief taken care of by the house cut in the retirement fund.

Meeting in skeleton session, the house last night received the highly important relief administration bill as recommended for passage by the public welfare committee. It will be placed on the house calendar for early action.

Important phases of the relief administration bill include administering of relief by the state welfare director, a board of appeals in relief matters, a county relief director appointed by county commissioners and barring from relief rolls of aliens who have not taken out citizenship papers.

May Borrow Tag Fund

The senate last night concurred in house amendments to Am. Sub. S. B. 4 which permits counties to borrow auto tag revenues for poor relief. A vital measure in the relief program, the bill now goes to Governor Bricker for signature.

In a regular working session, the senate passed five bills and received two others.

After more than an hour of debate, the upper house passed Sub. S. B. 74, introduced by Sen. Dave Baumhart (R-Vermillion) which makes certain changes in the liquor department setup.

The bill exempts from taxation spirituous liquor stored in bonded warehouses for the liquor department and limits the director's power to regulations covering liquor stores.

It also provides that wholesale and retail permits be renewed only if permit holders have by Jan. 1, 1941, paid all accounts for beer and malt beverages as of Aug. 23, 1937.

Sen. Maurice Lipscher (D-Youngstown) introduced an amendment, which passed, granting right of appeal to Common Pleas court from revocation decisions of the state liquor board.

Virginia Judge

Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia are not saying anything about it, but Roosevelt put over such a fast one on the appointment of a new Virginia judge that they are still gasping.

Last Winter, it will be recalled, Glass and Byrd fought Roosevelt to a standstill regarding the appointment of Floyd H. Roberts as U. S. District Judge in southwest Virginia, on the ground that the President had not consulted them about it.

They had nothing against Roberts' qualifications, but complained that Roosevelt, instead of discussing the matter with them, had discussed it with their enemy, Governor Jim Price. In a Senate showdown, Glass and Byrd won.

So last week, Roosevelt quietly selected Armistead M. Doble, dean of the Virginia Law School, as the new U. S. judge for Virginia. Doble, Roosevelt knew, had a record so outstanding that neither Byrd nor Glass could oppose him.

But Roosevelt was careful to say nothing about the appointment to anyone except Attorney General Murphy. Particularly he did not tell the two Virginia Senators, let alone consult them.

It was not until Doble's name actually was on the way to the Senate that the White House sent word to Glass and Byrd that the Virginia Law dean was being appointed. There was nothing left for the two Senators to do but rush out statements that they approved the selection.

Policemen in larger cities came in for relief when the upper chamber approved Sen. William Zoult's measure establishing an eight hour working day for policemen in municipalities. The vote was unanimous.

Other bills approved by the senate would:

1. Authorize taxing authorities to go outside ten-mile tax limitations for services on debts incurred prior to 1931.

2. Authorize Lucas county auditor to make refunds to certain taxpayers in connection with construction of Drenan ditch improvement.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," one of literature's most shocking, spine-chilling mystery stories and the greatest of all of Sherlock Holmes' astounding adventures, has at last been transcribed to the screen.

Tall, spare, hawklike Basil Rathbone, in the perfect-fitting role of the great detective, is co-starring with Richard Greene and Wendy Barrie in the 20th Century-Fox production which will be presented at the Grand theatre today, Wednesday and Thursday.

In this great story the master of a thousand mysteries pits his cunning against the giant unearthly beast that roams the fog-shrouded English moor with blazing eyes and bared fangs, terrorizing the countryside, striking horror into the hearts of two young lovers and leaving a trail so terrifying that only Sherlock Holmes dare follow.

Nigel Bruce plays the famous Dr. Watson, the great detective's constant companion, Boswell and amazed observer. Also included in the cast are Lionel Atwill, John Carradine, Barlowe Borland, Beryl Mercer, Morton Lowry and Ralph Forbes.

HELENE COSTELLO CITED

INTERESTING DATA SHOWN ABOUT ASHVILLE CLASS

Ashville's junior class, of which Nolan Murphy is registration teacher, has two students who have neither been absent nor tardy during the present school term. They are Ralph Carley and Charlotte Courtright.

Other statistics of the class show that 23 pupils enrolled at the beginning of the school term. Fifteen were of normal age for the 11th grade. Twelve were 16 years of age and three 17 years old. Seven were under age and one student was over age. Under age for juniors is 15 or less while the over age mark is 18 or more. The class finished the year with an enrollment of 21 pupils.

SENATORS FIND TWO NEW BILLS UP FOR ACTION

COLUMBUS, May 23 — With adjournment a matter of little more than a week, the senate today was confronted with two new bills.

During last night's session, Sen. Fred Adams (R-Bowling Green) introduced a measure placing the state's contribution to public employees' retirement fund on a pay as you go basis.

Adams is chairman of the senate finance committee which yesterday restored, in order to meet present needs, $655,000 of the $2,096,000 cut off by the house in the retirement fund provision in the biennial appropriations bill.

Another bill, introduced by Sen. Oliver Nelson (R-Milledgeville) would authorize boards of park commissioners to issue notes and bonds for acquisitions and improvement of sites, with obligations retired through rentals, licenses and permit fees.

PASSPORT DISH

NEW YORK, — No Dane ever worries about losing his passport, for if he does there is one sure way of proving he's a Dane. According to a guard at the Danish Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, all any citizen of Denmark has to do is report to the nearest Danish consulate or legation and pronounce the name of a famous native dessert — Rodgrød med Fløde.

It is huckleberry pudding with thick Devonshire cream, served in the outline of a map of Denmark. According to experts, no one but a true Dane can even demote at attempt pronunciation of the dish.

KIWANIANS AND GUESTS LISTEN TO FARM TALK

Fifteen Pickaway county farmers were guests of Kiwanians, Monday night, to hear the address of Dr. Harry Barnard, of Columbus, executive secretary of the National Farm and Chemurgic Council.

Dr. Barnard presented an interesting and educational address on the various industrial uses for surplus farm crops. He exhibited cloth made from milk and cited the great advancement made in the industrial uses of soybeans and other farm products.

Dan McClain, general chairman in charge of the first annual Policeman's and Fireman's Ball, has not completed his report on the event. Failure of some ticket sellers to make reports has delayed a final report.

The meeting was held in Hanley's tearoom.

GARNER, FAMILY ROUTED BY FIRE IN THEIR HOTEL

WASHINGTON, May 23 — Vice President John N. Garner, who usually retires around 9 p. m., was up and very much awake a few minutes after last midnight.

Smoke, caused by a short circuit, routed the Garner family from their seventh floor apartment at the Washington hotel.

Sleepy-eyed, the vice president, wearing blue-striped pajamas, escorted his wife, who wore a blue kimono, and Mr. and Mrs. Tully Garner, his son and daughter-in-law, past a group of guests to an unoccupied apartment in another wing of the hotel.

"I have never known Mr. Garner

to be frightened at anything," Mrs. Garner told a reporter who had asked "if the vice president was scared."

"It's the most unpleasant way he's ever been up at this hour," she added.

VICTORY IN CANADA

IT is not for nothing that those millions of Canadians throng into Quebec and Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto to see a King and Queen who, until now, have been remote and almost unreal. It is not mere idle curiosity. It is the stuff of which empires are made—and renewed.

The very likable young sovereigns are obviously doing what they came to do. It is, and will probably continue to be, a very good job. Talk about the salesmanship of Prince Edward in the old days when that glamorous lad roamed the empire as ambassador of good-will! His young brother and sister-in-law can give him lessons.

Handsome, democratic, satisfactorily married and in every way proper, orthodox from kingly crown to queenly slipper, and with a sort of medieval fairy-tale quality, they "get" everybody — from statesman to backwoodsman, from grandpa to little sister.

England now is less remote to the Canadians. These are Canada's sovereigns, as much as Britain's. One hesitant speech or a bashful grin from George, one friendly smile from Elizabeth, is worth an army in case of future need.

And we need not call this play-acting. However the shrewd statesmen responsible for the expedition may regard it, the actors in the limelight are doubtless sincere.

So Britain pushes forward on many fronts to bind her loose, scattered empire more firmly together, in sentimental rather than political bonds. So she meets the challenge of the states that trust only in force and regimentation.

NO MORE AIRSHIPS

THE President and the Secretary of the Navy have agreed that it's better to build no more rigid dirigibles, at least for the present. The House committee thinks the navy has done enough experimenting with small airships and rather wanted to see a large one built. But President Roosevelt observes that three of the large-size ships have been lost and there's room for experimentation on smaller cost patrol ships.

There must be a future for the lighter-than-air ships, both rigid and non-rigid types. The little blimps move blithely about the skies with a high degree of safety. Experiment must continue to go on. But the big dirigibles cost an awful lot of money to build and to operate, and in wartime what target one makes—what a target!

The Russians are naive. Champagne may be a "cultural drink", as Stalin says, but the fellow who has had enough of it is in the same state as the one who overdoes his use of uncultural vodka.

Up in weather that seems to be settled on the dry side. Frequent threats of rain, but nothing general, only local showers. We could use a soaker. Found grass burning in the back yard when I exercised the pup and hear farmers voice desire for rainfall. Well, we will get it. We almost always do.

Ed Rausenberger is dead and in his passing Ohio loses a good citizen. Three years ago I met Rausie, as he was known, for the first time. Learned then of his great interest in conservation and of his important personal part in making Ohio a great land for fishermen and hunters. He didn't just talk and express hope, he acted. Every conservationist in the state knew him and respected him. That was Rausie's public life side.

Rausie had a side that was not so well known, a side that commanded all my respect. It was of that side that I always thought when I saw him about the village, generally wearing a ragged coat and appearing as though he and money were only casual acquaintances. But he had plenty of money, and plenty of good clothes, too, when he cared to wear them. And he knew more about getting pleasure out of money than any person I ever have met.

How many poor folk have felt the magic touch of Rausie's money I don't know and I don't think anyone else does. One man who knew him well expressed belief that Rausie gave away more than $25,000 in the last few years. Gave away is hardly the proper expression. Rausie spent it for the benefit of others.

An incident of the last few weeks of his life well illustrates the man's attitude toward the unfortunate. He was in the office of his physician for treatment of an ailment that was incurable. A man, his wife and a child came in. The doctor examined the little one and told the parents that hospitalization was necessary. "But we can not send her to the hospital," the parents declared. "We have no money at all." They were told that the child would die unless taken to the institution where she would receive proper treatment. The mother cried, the father was stricken. Rausie motioned to the doctor and then whispered in his ear: "Take her to the hospital and send the bill to me."

That wasn't an unusual incident in the life of Ed Rausenberger. There were hundreds of them. Yes, I am proud to have known him, proud to think that he knew and liked me. And I regret his passing as much as any man. God rest his soul.

CURTSEY PRACTISE ABSORBS LADIES

WASHINGTON—As a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Representative John M. Vorys of Columbus, Ohio, is one lucky member of Congress to be invited to the British Embassy's garden party for the King and Queen.

A wartime naval pilot, instructor at Yale College in China, and aide to the American delegation at the 1921 disarmament conference, Vorys takes the honor lightly. But not Mrs. Vorys, who was born in India.

"I don't care what the other American women do," she informed her husband, "I am going to curtsy to the Queen. I think that is the courteous thing to do and I am going to do it."

In order to execute the curtsy properly, Mrs. Vorys starting practising, much to the interest of her five-year-old daughter, who also began bobbing up and down before the full-length mirror. After watching for a while, Mrs. Vorys' 70-year-old mother brushed them aside.

"Here, let me show you," she exclaimed. "Neither of you is doing it right. This is the way it should be done."

ROYAL BORAH

Senator William E. Borah, who as a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will also attend the party, was told by a friend that he would be expected to bow low to the royal visitors and then walk backward.

To which Borah retorted with a grin, "I know what you are up to. You are trying to keep me from going."

BRITISH DIPLOMACY

You can't help feel sorry at the sight of Sir Ronald Lindsay holding a press conference. He shifts from one foot to the other, puts his hands in, then out of his pockets, twists his seven-foot ambassadorial frame, is completely, disarmingly charming.

But Sir Ronald is only reaping the crop which he, himself, has sowed.

Sir Ronald has now been in the United States as His Britannic Majesty's Ambassador for exactly nine years. During that time he has lived in the prim and proper house that is called the British Embassy, played tennis on the duPont built courts of Lamont Belin, gone back to England every summer, and in general transplanted as much as possible of the British Isles to Washington.

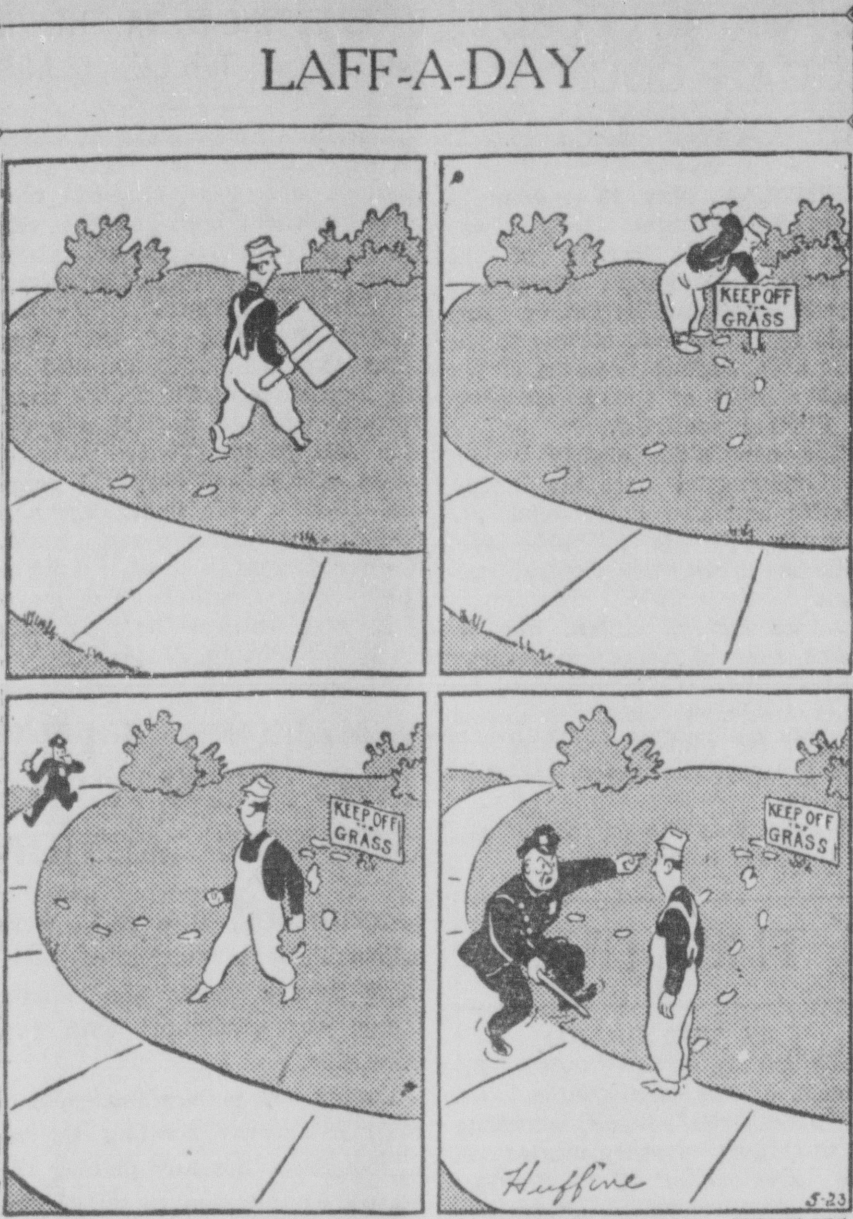

At no time during those nine years has Sir Ronald, lovable as he is, ever tried to do much mixing with the run o' the mine American people. He is the son of the 26th Earl of Crawford, and he has walked the path of would-be American earls and duchesses.

In fact, the British Embassy always has assumed an air of being a little above the American people. An invitation to one of its dinners was coveted by many people more than an invitation to the White House. If the British didn't do it, then it wasn't done.

Sir Ronald, of course, is popular personally. Anyone who knows him is sure to like him. But the trouble is he

DIET AND HEALTH

Where You Should Go On Your Vacation

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE HAVE commented on the great vacation migration in North America, in which an estimated 35,000,000 people take part. And we observed that while this is primarily done in the spirit of health, practically no discriminate planning for a vacation is done from the medical point of view or on medical advice.

The average American does not concern himself very much, in fact, with improving his health once he gets started on his vacation. The typical situation is that of a travel-worn friend of mine who said, "After I have been home about two weeks I believe I'll be as rested as I was when I went on my vacation."

The mistakes that are made in vacations, aside from the impulse to make whoopee as soon as the vacation is started, include faulty selection of a climate for the needs of the individual, too short a vacation, over-exposure to the climatic factors—too much sunbath, too much bathing, too intensive attempts to reap a maximum benefit in a short time—and excessive activity during the vacation.

Result of Mistakes
For those in good health such mistakes constitute only a minor tragedy. For those who are ill the mistakes go much deeper. For the latter the best vacation is at a health resort or spa, under proper medical supervision. The European vacationist is much more likely to take advantage of the health resorts than we are. We are inclined to go anywhere and trust to the climate to do the work.

It is probably not possible or advisable to transplant methods of treatment as used in European spas in the United States. But we have not developed our own splendid health resorts nearly as much as we should. We especially have not developed them for those who think they cannot afford the medical supervision of a health resort. We need also to develop an entirely new type of specialist—one who is familiar with the possibilities of climate and of our natural resources in the way of treatment. We have many advantages over Europe, for Europe has no Florida, no Colorado, no Nevada or New Mexico, and nothing like the Yellowstone National Park, with its mineral thermal springs and mud volcanoes.

Sensible Places
But, even so, we have many number of excellent health resorts in the United States where the natural resources are understood by the local medical profession, and for many vacationists these are the sensible places to go.

For the feeble aged and delicate children, they are primarily the best places. For chronic ailments of all kinds—diabetes, arthritis, Bright's disease, a weakening heart, high blood pressure, gout and obesity—it is far, far better to go to one of our many health resorts than to take the haphazard chance of going anywhere with the vigorous rest of the family.

Indeed, even for that vigorous rest of the family, a carefully planned and quiet vacation, where a deliberate attempt is made to rest, to change to a milder diet, and to avoid stimulants and excitement, would be a most advisable way of spending this summer's vacation.

She stood before the pier glass in her dressing room holding one gown after another up to her. She discarded a shimmering silver lace, and the black velvet she would like to have worn with her pearls. It was late April and the nights were warm, but not too warm for a hearth fire in the dining and drawing rooms. She must look at them and have them lighted at the right moment.

Grace and Dennis were arriving at seven-thirty. She had asked the Maibys to arrive at seven-fifteen. She did not want to find herself alone with Dennis Pryor before dinner.

The maid gave her a gown of sea-green silk. She slipped into it. The bodice clung to her. The skirt fell away in soft folds that billowed as she walked.

"This one will do," she said. "I'll wear my sapphire bracelets and the long sapphire earrings."

She brushed her long ash-blond hair until it shone, then arranged it in a soft roll at the back of her neck. She screwed a drip of sapphires into her ears and surveyed the effect. Blue and green and white, colors of the sea. "Undine," she said aloud.

There was a discreet knock at her door.
"Come," she said.

Phil came in. She looked at him in the mirror as she applied a touch of shadow to her eyelids.

There was a slight suggestion of a paunch at his waistline. His shoulders sloped under his dinner jacket. She said: "Stand up straight, Phil. Are you going to make the cocktails? Or have you told Perkins to?"

"I believe it has been arranged," he answered, unconsciously phrasing his answer as her secretary would have done.

"Something on your mind?" she asked.
"It's getting pretty nice up in the country. I drove up this afternoon to look over the garden. Do you think we might go out earlier this year?" It was their custom to move to the cottage late in May.

"Couldn't you ask me that some time when I haven't a dinner party on my mind, darling? . . . I suppose we'll go late in May, as usual."

The maid said: "It's seven, Mrs. Parrish."

Eleanor picked up a large blue chiffon handkerchief. She looked about the country later, Phil. I want to look over the table. You know I don't like the country until it gets really warm."

He said: "Whatever you say."

The table looked like an idealized painting of a table. Crystal and silver shone on a cloth of priceless lace. Blood red velvet roses clustered fragrantly between slender candles set in girandolas that were two hundred years old.

Eleanor looked at the menu she had ordered. It was exactly right. A clear soup, a thick steak, new green vegetables, a salad with hot cheese sticks, a simple sweet. Coffee and liquors in the drawing room. A man's dinner, the kind of a dinner only a woman who understood men would order.

She ate little of it herself. She

She brushed her long ash-blond hair until it shone, then arranged it in a soft roll at the back of her neck. She screwed a drip of sapphires into her ears and surveyed the effect. Blue and green and white, colors of the sea. "Undine," she said aloud.

There was a discreet knock at her door.

"I believe it has been arranged," he answered, unconsciously phrasing his answer as her secretary would have done.

"It's getting pretty nice up in the country. I drove up this afternoon to look over the garden. Do you think we might go out earlier this year?" It was their custom to move to the cottage late in May.

VICTORY IN CANADA

It is not for nothing that those millions of Canadians throng into Quebec and Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto to see a King and Queen who, until now, have been remote and almost unreal. It is not mere idle curiosity. It is the stuff of which empires are made—and renewed.

The very likable young sovereigns are obviously doing what they came to do. It is, and will probably continue to be, a very good job. Talk about the salesmanship of Prince Edward in the old days when that glamorous lad roamed the empire as ambassador of good-will! His young brother and sister-in-law can give him lessons.

Handsomeness, democratic, satisfactorily married and in every way proper, orthodox from kingly crown to queenly slipper, and with a sort of medieval fairy-tale quality, they "get" everybody—from statesman to backwoodsman, from grandpa to little sister.

England now is less remote to the Canadians. These are Canada's sovereigns, as much as Britain's. One hesitant speech or a bashful grin from George, one friendly smile from Elizabeth, is worth an army in case of future need.

And we need not call this play-acting. However the shrewd statesmen responsible for the expedition may regard it, the actors in the limelight are doubtless sincere.

So Britain pushes forward on many fronts to bind her loose, scattered empire more firmly together, in sentimental rather than political bonds. So she meets the challenge of the states that trust only in force and regimentation.

NO MORE AIRSHIPS

THE President and the Secretary of the Navy have agreed that it's better to build no more rigid dirigibles, at least for the present. The House committee thinks the navy has done enough experimenting with small airships and rather wanted to see a large one built. But President Roosevelt observes that three of the large-size ships have been lost and there's room for experimentation on smaller cost patrol ships.

There must be a future for the lighter-than-air ships, both rigid and non-rigid types. The little blimps move blithely about the skies with a high degree of safety. Experiment must continue to go on. But the big dirigibles cost an awful lot of money to build and to operate, and in wartime what target one makes—what a target!

The Russians are naive. Champagne may be a "cultural drink", as Stalin says, but the fellow who has had enough of it is in the same state as the one who overdoes his use of uncultural vodka.

Up in weather that seems to be settled on the dry side. Frequent threats of rain, but nothing general, only local showers. We could use a soaker. Found grass burning in the back yard when I exercised the pup and hear farmers voice desire for rainfall. Well, we will get it. We almost always do.

Ed Rausenberger is dead and in his passing Ohio loses a good citizen. Three years ago I met Rausie, as he was known, for the first time. Learned then of his great interest in conservation and of his important personal part in making Ohio a great land for fishermen and hunters. He didn't just talk and express hope, he acted. Every conservationist in the state knew him and respected him. That was Rausie's public life side.

Rausie had a side that was not so well known, a side that commanded all my respect. It was of that side that I always thought when I saw him about the ville, generally wearing a ragged coat and appearing as though he and money were only casual acquaintances. But he had plenty of money, and plenty of good clothes, too, when he cared to wear them. And he knew more about getting pleasure out of money than any person I ever have met.

How many poor folk have felt the magic touch of Rausie's money I don't know and I don't think anyone else does. One man who knew him well expressed belief that Rausie gave away more than $25,000 in the last few years. Gave away is hardly the proper expression. Rausie spent it for the benefit of others.

An incident of the last few weeks of his life well illustrates the man's attitude toward the unfortunate. He was in the office of his physician for treatment of an ailment that was incurable. A man, his wife and a child came in. The doctor examined the little one and told the parents that hospitalization was necessary. "But we can't send her to the hospital," the parents declared. "We have no money at all." They were told that the child would die unless taken to the institution where she would receive proper treatment. The mother cried, the father was stricken. Rausie motioned to the doctor and then whispered in his ear: "Take her to the hospital and send the bill to me."

That wasn't an unusual incident in the life of Ed Rausenberger. There were hundreds of them. Yes, I am proud to have known him, proud to think that he knew and liked me. And I regret his passing as much as any man. God rest his soul.

CURTSEY PRACTISE ABSORBS LADIES

WASHINGTON—As a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Representative John M. Vorys of Columbus, Ohio, is one lucky member of Congress to be invited to the British Embassy's garden party for the King and Queen.

A wartime naval pilot, instructor at Yale College in China, and aide to the American delegation at the 1921 disarmament conference, Vorys takes the honor lightly. But not Mrs. Vorys, who was born in India.

"I don't care what the other American women do," she informed her husband, "I am going to curtsy to the Queen. I think that is the courteous thing to do and I am going to do it."

In order to execute the curtsy properly, Mrs. Vorys starting practising, much to the interest of her five-year-old daughter, who also began bobbing up and down before the full-length mirror. After watching for a while, Mrs. Vorys' 70-year-old mother brushed them aside.

"Here, let me show you," she exclaimed. "Neither of you is doing it right. This is the way it should be done."

ROYAL BORAH

Senator William E. Borah, who as a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will also attend the party, was told by a friend that he would be expected to bow low to the royal visitors and then walk backward.

To which Borah retorted with a grin, "I know what you are up to. You are trying to keep me from going."

BRITISH DIPLOMACY

You can't help feel sorry at the sight of Sir Ronald Lindsay holding a press conference. He shifts from one foot to the other, puts his hands in, then out of his pockets, twists his seven-foot ambassadorial frame, is completely, disarmingly charming.

But Sir Ronald is only reaping the crop which he, himself, has sowed.

Sir Ronald has now been in the United States as His Britannic Majesty's Ambassador for exactly nine years. During that time he has lived in the prim and proper house that is called the British Embassy, played tennis on the duPont built courts of Lamont Belin, gone back to England every summer, and in general transplanted as much as possible of the British Isles to Washington.

At no time during those nine years has Sir Ronald, lovable as he is, ever tried to do much mixing with the run o' the mine American people. He is the son of the 26th Earl of Crawford, and he has walked the path of would-be American earls and duchesses.

In fact, the British Embassy always has assumed an air of being a little above the American people. An invitation to one of its dinners was coveted by many people more than an invitation to the White House. If the British didn't do it, then it wasn't done.

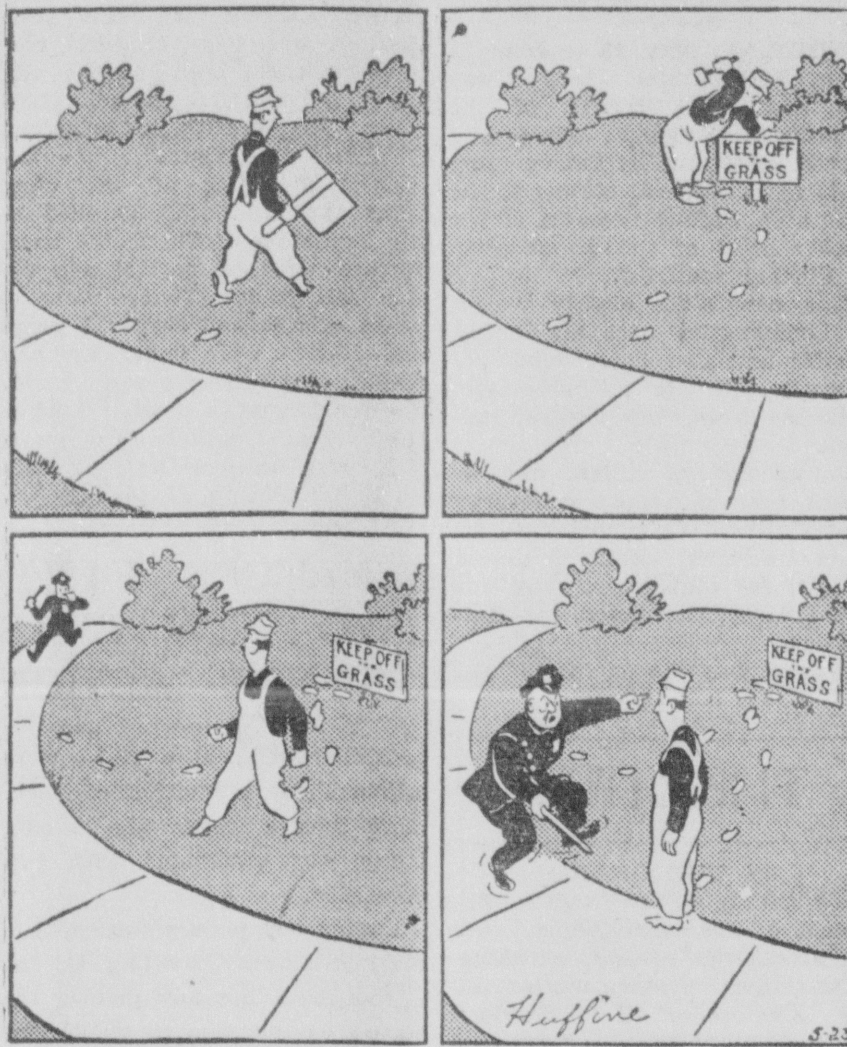

Sir Ronald, of course, is popular personally. Anyone who knows him is sure to like him. But the trouble is he

LAFF-A-DAY

DIET AND HEALTH

Where You Should Go On Your Vacation

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE HAVE commented on the great vacation migration in North America, in which an estimated 35,000,000 people take part. And we observed that while this is primarily done in the spirit of health, practically no discriminate planning for a vacation is done from the medical point of view or on medical advice.

The average American does not concern himself very much, in fact, with improving his health once he gets started on his vacation. The typical situation is that of a travel-worn friend of mine who said, "After I have been home about two weeks I believe I'll be as rested as I was when I went on my vacation."

The mistakes that are made in vacations, aside from the impulse to make whoopee as soon as the vacation is started, include faulty selection of a climate for the needs of the individual, too short a vacation, over-exposure to the climatic factors—too much sunbath, too much bathing, too intensive attempts to reap a maximum benefit in a short time—and excessive activity during the vacation.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Result of Mistakes

For those in good health such mistakes constitute only a minor tragedy. For those who are ill the mistakes go much deeper.

For the latter the best vacation is at a health resort or spa, under proper medical supervision. The European vacationist is much more likely to take advantage of the health resorts than we are. We are inclined to go anywhere and trust to the climate to do the work.

It is probably not possible or advisable to transplant methods of treatment as used in European spas in the United States. But we have not developed our own splendid health resorts nearly as much as we should. We especially have not developed them for those who think they cannot afford the medical supervision of a health resort. We need also to develop an entirely new type of specialist—one who is familiar with the possibilities of climate and of our natural resources in the way of treatment. We have many advantages over Europe, for example, no Florida, no Colorado, no Nevada or New Mexico, and nothing like the Yellowstone National Park, with its mineral thermal springs and mud volcanoes.

Sensible Places

But, even so, we have many number of excellent health resorts in the United States where the natural resources are understood by the local medical profession, and for many vacationists these are the sensible places to go.

For the feeble aged and delicate children, they are primarily the best places. For chronic ailments of all kinds—diabetes, arthritis, Bright's disease, a weakening heart, high blood pressure, gout and obesity—it is far, far better to go to one of our many health resorts than to take the haphazard chance of going anywhere with the vigorous rest of the family.

Indeed, even for that vigorous rest of the family, a carefully planned quiet vacation, where a deliberate attempt is made to rest, to change to a milder diet, and to avoid stimulants and excitement, would be a most advisable way of spending this summer's vacation.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendingen has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. A NUMBER of the finest bridge experts boast that they never studied a book. That is another way of saying that they took the expensive and long course to learn certain things which could have been obtained much more economically, quickly, soundly and thoroughly. They are likely to fail to familiarize themselves with certain plays which are practically clear-cut when the situation for them arises.

CHAPTER FORTY

ELEANOR approved her figure. It was supple as her daughter's, and her legs, in sheer silk, were straight and graceful. The flesh under the scant covering of chiffon was firm and white as alabaster. Eleanor never had subscribed to the mode for tanned skin.

She stood before the pier glass in her dressing room holding one gown after another up to her. She discarded a shimmering silver lace, and the black velvet she would like to have worn with her pearls. It was late April and the nights were warm, but not too warm for a hearth fire in the dining and drawing rooms. She must look at them and have them lighted at the right moment.

Grace and Dennis were arriving at seven-thirty. She had asked the Malthys to arrive at seven-fifteen. She did not want to find herself alone with Dennis Pryor before dinner.

The maid gave her a gown of sea-green silk. She slipped into it. The bodice clung to her. The skirt fell away in soft folds that billowed as she walked.

"This one will do," she said. "I'll wear my sapphire bracelets and the long sapphire earrings."

She brushed her long ash-blond hair until it shone, then arranged it in a soft roll at the back of her neck. She screwed a drip of sapphire into her ears and surveyed the effect. Blue and green and white, colors of the sea. "Undine," she said aloud.

There was a discreet knock at her door.

"Come," she said. She looked at him in the mirror as she applied a touch of shadow to her eyelids.

There was a slight suggestion of a pounce at his waistline. His shoulders sloped under his dinner jacket. She said: "Stand up straight, Phil. Are you going to make the cocktails? Or have you told Perkins to?"

"I believe it has been arranged," he answered, unconsciously phrasing his answer as her secretary would have done.

"Something on your mind?" she asked.

"It's getting pretty nice up in the country. I drove up this afternoon to look over the garden. Do you think we might go out earlier this year?" It was their custom to move to the cottage late in May.

"Couldn't you ask me that some time when I haven't a dinner party on my mind, darling? . . . I suppose we'll go late in May, as usual."

The maid said: "It's seven, Mrs. Parrish."

Eleanor picked up a large blue chiffon handkerchief. "Well, I'll talk about the country later, Phil. I want to look over the table. You know I don't like the country until it gets really warm."

He said: "Whatever you say."

The table looked like an idealized painting of a table. Crystal and silver shone on a cloth of priceless lace. Blood red velvet roses clustered fragrant between slender candles set in girandoles that were two hundred years old.

Eleanor looked at the menu she had ordered. It was exactly right.

A clear soup, a thick steak, new green vegetables, a salad with hot cheese sticks, a simple sweet. Coffee and liquors in the drawing room. A man's dinner, the kind of a dinner only a woman who understood men would order.

She ate little of it herself. She

"Perhaps I mean to be something to you," said Dennis.

was conscious of Dennis Pryor's eyes on hers, of Dennis Pryor's thoughts as he sat beside her.

She led their talk brilliantly, speaking of the theater, of politics, of the international situation.

In the drawing room she sat down before the coffee table. She gave Dennis Pryor his cup last.

He said: "Thank you. You are like your characters after all. It was so little a thing to have upset her. She said: 'Really? How do you know?'"

"I've been reading your books at Grace's."

She put her cup down and said in a gentle, admonitory tone: "Then how could you have said that?"

"The form doesn't matter, Mrs. Parrish. This is a serious drawing room, his eyes seemingly encompassing everything of the harmony, the grace, the taste—I am thinking of the fundamental woman. Perhaps no one else has ever told you that."

She smiled at him slowly. "No, no one has. I think, perhaps, if anyone ever had, he would have found it hard to convince me."

"I shall try."

She said: "May I give you some fresh coffee?"

"Will you ride with me tomorrow?"

"How did you know that I ride?"

"I know a great deal about you."

"Or think you do," she said. She said it shortly, but she was pleased.

"You have a country place very near Grace?"

"Only a cottage, but near to her. About ten miles inland."

"I should like to see it. I like seeing things that belong to you."

"It doesn't belong to me alone. It belongs to my husband and my children as well," she said rather primly.

"May I? he persisted. 'I expect I shall be here another fortnight.'"

"That will be very nice," she said politely.

Phil came over to them then. "Excuse me, Nell. . . I've asked Tommy Upton to drop in after dinner. Would you rather I arranged some bridge?"

"What a pleasant surprise! Tommy will sing for us," she said, as if it surprised her that Phil had arranged for the most popular nightclub entertainer in New York to drop in after dinner.

When Phil had gone away, she launched into an enthusiastic description of Tommy Upton.

"I want no one else to entertain me," Dennis told her quietly. "Why are you ill at ease with me?" Eleanor wet her lips. "I am not ill at ease with you. Why should I be?" she demanded.

"That, my dear, lovely lady, is something that I do not know. I only know it is so. You shouldn't be, you know. I mean you no harm."

"Are you quite sure of that?" she returned. It was such a simple question, so importantly put, so devoid of any coyness. She felt it was one of the most important things she ever had asked. She felt quickened all through her being.

"Perhaps I mean to be something to you. I do not mean to do you harm."

"If you were anything to me . . . other than you are . . . I think, perhaps, it would be harm to me."

"Are you quite sure that you know what I am to you at this moment?"

"For the first time in her life she could not say one thing while her heart said another. She said: 'No, I am not.' She rallied quickly and said with the bright, hostess smile she long had cultivated: 'I believe that's Tommy now. You'll find him amusing.'"

"You may even find me amusing. I'll call for you at nine tomorrow morning. Is that too early?"

She shook her head and moved away from him to greet her latest guest.

How To Strengthen Weak Tomato Seedlings

Tomato plants can be set outdoors anytime after all danger of a late frost is past. Plant them in a rich soil or mix some manure into the soil at the bottom of each hole as you plant the seedlings.

If some of your seedlings turn out to be tall and spindly, too weak to support themselves, they should be planted by what is known as the trench method. As shown in the illustration, planting by the trench method involves burying a part of the stem in a slightly horizontal position. Roots will develop along the buried stem and these will serve to give additional strength and energy to the plant. To keep the plant upright until the new roots can give it strength to stand alone, stake it as illustrated.

To ripen the tomatoes quickly after they have formed gardeners practice a certain amount of defoliation so the sun can reach the fruit and thus hasten ripening.

Bugs On Spirea
Now that Spirea is almost finished blooming you will have a plague of aphids on the bushes. You can get rid of them by using a spray made of Black Leaf Forty which you can get at your druggist's and spray three times about four or five days apart. Right now is the best time to trim back your Spirea and your Forsythia. Both of these shrubs make a vigorous growth and the flowers for next year come on the wood that grows from now on and not on the old wood, so trim them as severely as you want to. Consider how high you want them to get by Fall and then trim them about eighteen inches below that height. Where Spirea has been neglected and extends over a large part of the lawn in front, cut it back until you have only some sticks left and two or three weeks new growth will have started and you will get bushy plants again.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday May 23
While the astral indications are for fairly active moves in business there also are tokens of adverse influences. These may be due to the impulses and indiscretions resulting from the high-pitched state of the forces and faculties. This want of poise and caution may prove a disturbing element, both in business and in the private life.

Nevertheless, there are signs of some pleasant social or sentimental engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an active, progressive and pleasant year if they will put the brakes on some rather combative, turbulent, imprudent and intemperate conduct. This may be the result of an overstimulated nervous tension or some other feverish physical or mental condition. It may have unhappy reactions on domestic associations. Poise, calm, precaution are urged.

A child born on this day may have an excessively-stimulated and passionate nature, although it should be mentally bright, energetic and ambitious. Proper direction and discipline in infancy may preclude unhappy personal relations in later life.

The Rev. O. R. Swisher of Stoutsville will be guest speaker for the afternoon session.

Phi Beta Psi
Phi Beta Psi sorority enjoyed a dinner meeting Monday at Beechwood, Worthington. Fifteen were present, including Miss Laura McGhee of Williamsport who was the honor guest for the occasion.

Tiny sachet favors in cellophane containers were at each place. Miss McGhee was presented a gift by the sorority.

Initiation of Miss McGhee, a sorority pledge, was held at the apartment of Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, Worthington.

Miss Pauline Hill, president, was in charge of the ritualistic initiation work. She was assisted by the Misses Wilmina Phebus, Virginia Smith, Margaret Hunsicker and Veronica Kuhns. The impressive service was conducted by candle light.

Other members assisting in the ceremony were Miss Dorothy Bartley, Mrs. Frank Marion, Mrs. Delos Marcy, Miss Helen Liston, Mrs. Willis Liston, Miss Peggy Parks and Mrs. Dudley Carpenter.

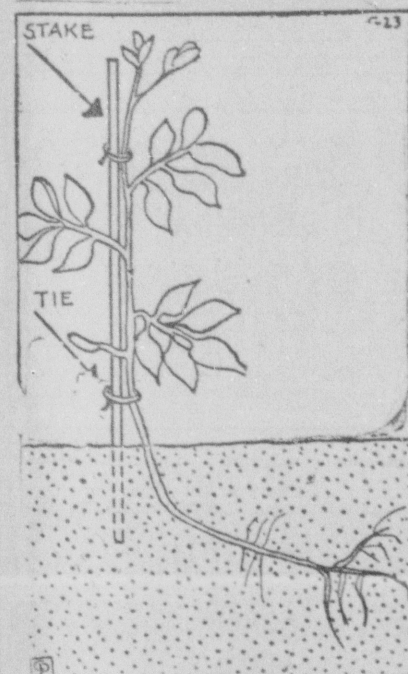

During the business hour, it was decided to have a steak roast for the next meeting. The committee appointed included Miss Phebus, chairman, Miss Mary Seal and Miss Bartley.

The convention, which will be in Ashville, N. C. June 22, 23 and 24, was discussed, Miss Hunsicker, being named delegate and Miss Smith, alternate. This will be the 33rd annual National Convention of Phi Beta Psi, which is a charitable, civic and social sorority.

Delegates and other members are expected to attend from each of the 37 active chapters located in the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Florida, Kansas, California, Oregon and Washington, D. C.

The sorority was founded in

GARDEN-GRAPH

How To Strengthen Weak Tomato Seedlings

Tomato plants can be set outdoors anytime after all danger of a late frost is past. Plant them in a rich soil or mix some manure into the soil at the bottom of each hole as you plant the seedlings.

If some of your seedlings turn out to be tall and spindly, too weak to support themselves, they should be planted by what is known as the trench method. As shown in the illustration, planting by the trench method involves burying a part of the stem in a slightly horizontal position. Roots will develop along the buried stem and these will serve to give additional strength and energy to the plant. To keep the plant upright until the new roots can give it strength to stand alone, stake it as illustrated.

To ripen the tomatoes quickly after they have formed gardeners practice a certain amount of defoliation so the sun can reach the fruit and thus hasten ripening.

Bugs On Spirea

Now that Spirea is almost finished blooming you will have a plague of aphids on the bushes. You

Columbus Feb. 15, 1904, to promote fraternal relationship among its members, to give the members inspiration to do charity work and assist in civic improvement. Since the date of its founding, this sorority has continued to grow in both numbers and usefulness, until today, with a membership scattered through ten states, it ranks as one of the largest and best non-educational sororities in the country.

The influence of this organization is strongly felt in all communities represented by chapters. Each group yearly lists many answers to calls for assistance to the usual, and at times, unusual, run of charity and civic needs. The 1938 Convention reports showed a sum of over $5,000 had been spent in this manner by the various chapters, to say nothing of the many services rendered whose worth cannot be measured in dollars and cents. A National Project will probably be inaugurated at this year's Convention.

The 1939 convention will be at Grove Park Inn, Asheville, with an interesting and instructive program planned. The members of the Grand Council of the sorority include Virginia Seidensticker, Chillicothe, president; Ruth Schumann, Vero Beach, Fla., vice president; Mary E. Bierly, Chillicothe, secretary; Louise Galbraith, Johnstown, Pa., treasurer; Frieda Pleasant, Orleans, Ind., inspector; Dorothy Chandler, London, editor.

The Misses Effie and Katherine Duncan and Miss Nan Fischer of can get rid of them by using a spray made of Black Leaf Forty which you can get at your drug-gist's and spray three times about four or five days apart. Right now is the best time to trim back your Spirea and your Forsythia. Both of these shrubs make a vigorous growth and the flowers for next year come on the wood that grows from now on and not on the old wood, so trim them as severely as you want to. Consider how high you want them to get by Fall and then trim them about eighteen inches below that height. Where Spirea has been neglected and extends out over a large part of the lawn in front, cut it back until you have only some sticks left and two or three weeks new growth will have started and you will get bushy plants again.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday May 23

While the astral indications are for fairly active moves in business there also are tokens of adverse influences. These may be due to the impulses and indiscretions resulting from the high-pitched state of the forces and faculties. This want of poise and caution may prove a disturbing element, both in business and in the private life. Nevertheless, there are signs of some pleasant social or sentimental engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an active, progressive and pleasant year if they will put the brakes on some rather combative, turbulent, imprudent and intemperate conduct. This may be the result of an overstimulated nervous tension or some other feverish physical or mental condition. It may have unhappy reactions on domestic associations. Poise, calm, precaution are urged.

A child born on this day may have an excessively-stimulated and passionate nature, although it should be mentally bright, energetic and ambitious. Proper direction and discipline in infancy may preclude unhappy personal relations in later life.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just,
And he but naked, though lock'd up in steel,
Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted.

Purina Defeats Oil Team, 3 to 1

An airtight softball game that featured excellent fielding and good pitching saw the Purina Feeds win a 3-1 game Monday evening from the Cooper Oils of Ashville. The winning team was able to get only three hits while the losers connected for four safeties. However, the Purina crew went through the seven innings with only one error, while three were chalked against the losers.

The Purina team took a lead in the opening inning without a base hit. Warner walked, the Cooper centerfielder lost Bartholomew's fly and the leftfield was unable to handle Strawser's fly ball, two markers crossing the rubber. The other Purina run came in the fifth session on Cook's single and Melson's double. In this inning, McKinley, Cooper hurler, fanned the side, Strawser, Hegele and Cupp going down swinging, but the hits were interspersed to account for the runs.

The Cooper Oil run was chalked up in the last half of the seventh frame, Trego and Thrallkill connecting for safeties, the former crossing the payoff station.

Anderson and Hegele divided mound duties for the winners, the former retiring in the fourth. Williams started for the Coopers but was replaced by McKinley when he was hurt by a ball hit back through the box.

The Monarchs and the Lewis & Frisinger contractors meet this evening at 6:30.

BUD KNOX PUTS BEE ON ZWICK IN FIRST ROUND

COLUMBUS, May 23—Buddy Knox, young Dayton, O., heavy-weight today had a one-round knockout victory over Joe Zwick, of Shenandoah, Pa., to his credit. It took Knox just two minutes and fifty seconds of the first round to dispose of Zwick.

Zwick was substituting for Mickey Avoy, of New York, who failed to show up for the weighing in ceremonies yesterday afternoon. The Pennsylvania fighter hit the canvas five times before Referee Benny Cohen stopped the match.

In a preliminary, Willie Muldoon, 174, Cleveland, scored a technical knockout over Bob Delaney, of Sidney, O., after one minute and fifty seconds of the third round. Another Sidney boy, Virgil Brown, 146, gained a four-round decision from Sam Mack, 144, Columbus, after taking a nine-count in the first round.

Dionne Quintuplets in Toronto to Meet Their Majesties

ALL DRESSED up in their Sunday best and surrounded by nurses and government officials, the Dionne quintuplets arrive in Toronto, Canada, for their long-awaited meeting with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. As the little girls are wards of the crown, their British majesties are, in a sense, guardians and foster parents of the quintuplets.

BOSTON.—Your chance for a divorce in Hampden County is better than 3 to 1 according to WPA studies of records covering a 17-year period. The department found 3,517 suits were filed in the county, which includes the city of Springfield, in that period, of which 2,692 were granted, 312 denied and 513 not adjudicated.

F. D. R. in Bitter Attack Against New Deal Foes

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Roosevelt didn't say yes and he didn't say no about a third term, but friends and foes alike knew today—if they never knew it before—that he intended to be a very potent factor in the 1940 campaign.

All this was contained in his carefully prepared address to the American Retail Federation last night, in which he unmistakably pledged himself to fight for a continuation of what he termed "the conservative New Deal" as against the "radical gamblers" of 1929.

Without committing himself on the question of whether he will again be a candidate, Mr. Roosevelt most definitely set the stage for next year's presidential struggle.

Within a month — unless congress decides to adjourn quickly — the President will be on his way across country once more. With Asheville, N. C., as his first stop and San Francisco as his last on the western swing, he will have an opportunity to carry last night's philosophy more directly to the people. If he returns from Seattle, via the northern route, more voters will hear the same doctrine.

Mr. Roosevelt said nothing new at the Retailers' National Forum. He merely re-emphasized in best campaign style what he said in Madison Square Garden on the eve of the 1936 election, and in other speeches before and since.

Party Fight Predicted

The issues as he will make them will still be the same. The New Deal candidate—and it appeared anti-New Dealers in the Democratic party were going to either accept that candidate or a fight in next year's convention—will stand on the same platform Mr. Roosevelt has fashioned in the last six years.

This platform embodies adequate care for the one-third of the population "that is ill-clad, ill-housed, ill-fed." It calls for continued government spending to build up the purchasing power of the consumer. It frankly concedes a balanced budget next year is impossible. It puts the tax burden on the higher brackets as against the little fellows. It refutes the idea of a dole as against work relief. It calls for more Social Security. It forecasts in the near future a nation that can pay its own way.

And the Roosevelt enemies are to be the same. He singled out the Republican national committee and the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. last night in particular as he denounced those who seek to retire his philosophy.

"You cannot expect this administration to alter the principles and objectives for which we have struggled in the last six years," he said, after collectively ridiculing the U. S. Chamber members, laughing at the G. O. P. "National Debt Week" currently being exploited by the opposition, and promising that if one sort of tax was taken off the very wealthy corporation or individual a compensating levy would be substituted.

Talk To Middle-Class

Using all radio facilities, the President hammered home an argument designed to register in the middle-class home and the home of the under-privileged. He pointed out, for instance that all of the "hullabaloo" about repeal of the undistributed profits tax would affect less than two percent of the taxes in that bracket. He tossed out such phrases in his rich voice as "we are not ruled by the thought of profits alone," "sweet-by-and-by" tactics will not produce jobs, and "consistency, thy name is geography."

SAVED IN TIME

HAVANA. — Jose Lopez Nanet, 55, a cigar maker disgusted with life, made complete plans for his funeral, writing a note inviting everyone in his neighborhood whether "white, black or yellow" and then hanged himself in the patio of a friend's butcher shop. But the friend saw him, cut him down and got him to the hospital where they revived him. Nanet promised not to try again.

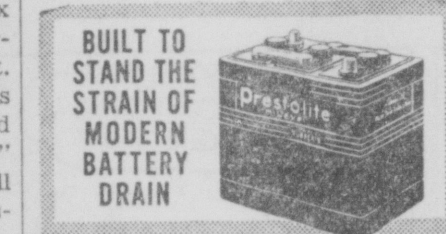

FEDERAL FUNDS TO HELP ROADS

Allotment Of $14,400 Sent To County; Resurfacing To Start About June 1

Pickaway county received $14,400, Monday, for the first payment by P.W.A. on the project to surface treat about 70 miles of county roads this year.

Some preliminary work was done on the roads last year for the treatment. Resurfacing of the roads will start about June 1, the county engineer's department reported. T. D. Van Camp & Sons, Columbus, were awarded the contract to do the surface treating at a bid of $83,994.37. The program includes surfacing of 51.7 miles of gravel roads and re-treatment of 18.4 miles of surfaced roads.

The entire project had been estimated at $100,700, on which an allocation of $45,315 was made by P.W.A. It is the first road program under P.W.A. in the county.

20 BOYS, GIRLS GRADUATE FROM ASHVILLE HIGH

Capital U. Professor Asks Students To Stress Citizenship

A class of 20 was graduated from Ashville-Harrison high school, Monday night, at exercises held in the school auditorium.

Prof. William Craig, of Capital university, likened a circus to life, advising the graduates to make their lives, or stakes, solid and deep for the protection of democracy, or the "big top." He urged graduates to be honest, sincere and courageous in meeting the problems of life. Good citizenship, he pointed out, will solve many issues faced by the world today.

The stage was attractively decorated through the courtesy of Hideburn Martin, Circleville decorator, and the M. M. Hott Co., Ashville greenhouse firm. Music was furnished by the Ashville orchestra. The invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. H. O. Harbaugh. Presentation of diplomas was by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools.

Other features of the exercises included the salutatory by Verda Bell, class history by Mary Margaret Carley, class poem by Helen Kibbee, class prophecy by Paul Nance, class will by James Neece, and valedictory by Kathryn Thompson. Edwin Swayser played a trombone solo. Another musical feature was a vocal sextet consisting of Verda Bell, Jean Brinker, Helen Kibbee, Kathryn Thompson, James Neece and Edwin Swayser.

Graduates were Jimmie Alexander, Frederick Barthelmas,

Richard Cook, Robert Courtright, Bussie Hedges, Leroy Hoover, Marion Jones, Paul Nance, James Neece, Edwin Swayser, Joe Vause, Bernard Walden, Verda Bell, Jean Brinker, Mary Margaret Carley, Helen Kibbee, Leora Nance, Dorothy Reid, Kathryn Thompson, and Virgie Six.
